

ENVIRONMENTAL POLICY OF APPLIEDORE BOOK FESTIVAL

The environmental policy of Appledore Book Festival is to seek to minimise its effect on the environment by such means as promoting the well-being of the local community, by striving to include speakers from the West Country to appear at the Festival, by encouraging speakers and visitors to travel by public transport to the Festival, by encouraging local businesses to participate in and to supply the Festival, by sharing resources with other local groups and minimising use of resources, by printing publicity and other material on recycled paper when possible and by generally re-using and recycling the materials used in the running of the Festival.
